NETEZZA PARTNERS WITH AUSTRALIAN SYSTEMS INTEGRATOR OPRAXE INTERNATIONAL

Sydney — October 23, 2006 — Netezza, the global data warehouse appliance market leader, today announced a systems integrator partnership with Opraxe International. The Sydney, Australia-based Company engages with clients around Australia and the Asia-Pacific region in strategising, defining and implementing high-performing "Analytical Engines."

Malcolm Logan, Chief Executive Officer at Opraxe International says, "Organisations of all sizes are prioritising activities around in-depth data analysis and driving the continued evolution of behavioural based analytical environments. As we move forward, this data analysis and interpretation will be the defining feature of successful organisations. The ability to do it, the ability to execute it and the ability to take action on it, immediately, will drive organisational success. The Netezza Performance Server® (NPS®) data warehouse appliance supports this philosophy, and is without equal in terms of processing speed, architectural elegance, ease of management and how it fundamentally reduces the cost and complexity of these enterprise environments."

"We are delighted to partner with Opraxe International," says Vinay Samuel, Netezza's general manager for Southern Asia. "With Netezza's continued growth and success in the marketplace, our systems integrator partners are critical to supporting our user and prospect community. We look forward to working with Opraxe International, generating new joint prospects and creating high-performing analytic engines for our customers."
